Turn left onto Cold Brook Road and then take the first right onto Ripley Hill Road. Follow Ripley Hill Road south for approximately 1.5 miles to a hilltop meadow. Although there are no hiking trails at Ripley Hill, the meadow can be painted from the unpaved road.
- 11. High Vista Nature Preserve - Head east on East Genesee Street. After 1/2 mile, turn right onto Route 41 South. Follow Route 41 for about 15 miles and turn right on Vincent Hill Road at the Onondaga/Cortland County line in the Town of Scott. The parking area is on the right at a deep bend in the road. Walk down the road to find the preserve entrance on the left.

The Finger Lakes Land Trust protects over 17,000 acres of our region's beloved forests, fields, wetlands, streams, and lakeshores. Many of these lands are open to the public for quiet recreation through a network of 35 nature preserves. The Land Trust has protected many additional acres by working with landowners to place permanent development restrictions on private lands that remain on local tax rolls. The Land Trust conducts educational programming for local governments, landowners, and the community within the 12-county Finger Lakes region. The Land Trust is a non-profit conservation organization funded by individuals, grants, and volunteers. For more information, visit www.flit.org.

The John D. Barrow Art Gallery is a single-artist gallery containing the works of John D. Barrow (1824 --1906), a second generation Hudson River School style painter. The gallery opened October 8, 1900, beginning a wonderful cultural and historical legacy for the Skaneateles community. The primary entrance to the art gallery is through the Skaneateles Library; however, the gallery is a separate non-profit facility.
